

The Colorado Stone, Sand & Gravel Association (CSSGA) is a Colorado based not for profit organization representing the interests of the state's aggregate mining industry. Founded in 1956, the CSSGA is a member driven organization that works with state and local governments, regulatory agencies, and the Colorado community to continue improving and growing the aggregate mining industry. CSSGA also educates the aggregate community about environmentally friendly products and practices.

There are three types of CSSGA members:

- Producer Members:
Companies that are actively involved in the mining of aggregates.
- Corporate Associate Members:
Companies that provide a product or service to the stone, sand and gravel industry and have over 3 employees.
- Small Business Associate Members:
Companies that provide a product or service to the stone, sand and gravel industry and have 3 or less employees.

The primary objectives of the CSSGA are:

- Maintain a strong voice and presence for the industry on legislative matters.
- Educate our members on the most up-to-date and pertinent safety issues.
- Improve and maintain strong relations with state and local regulatory agencies.
- Bring Best Management Practices to our members through leading industry experts.
- Outreach with consumers, end-users, and students about the aggregate industry's influence on daily life, reclamation efforts, and their effects on the Colorado community.

CSSGA is aligned with the National Stone, Sand & Gravel Association and other material, supply, and contracting associations.

Why join CSSGA?

1. Legislative clout. As our membership increases so does our effectiveness on presenting a unified voice on the industry's position on legislative and regulatory issues. The majority of the industry, acting together, has far more influence than companies acting individually.
2. Stronger, more effective industry. CSSGA's ability to promote and serve the industry is dependent on the support we get from our members. The more members we have, the stronger our resources and influence are. Increasing CSSGA membership results in improving our ability to meet the industry's needs, both today and in the future.
3. Networking and information source. Collectively, CSSGA's membership is extremely knowledgeable regarding all aspects of the aggregate industry. When you belong, you have access to all of this information through events and programs that give you the opportunity to discuss your issues with other industry leaders. CSSGA also serves as a clearinghouse of information that is distributed to members through regular committee meetings, emails, and newsletters.
4. MSHA's New Miner Training. Through our ongoing partnership with MSHA, CSSGA has been integral to the production of the Part-46 New Miner Training DVD series. Our membership receives a discount on this MSHA sanctioned training material.
5. Committee Involvement/Activity. CSSGA has a number of committees that work on behalf of the Stone, Sand and Gravel Industry. The Land Use & Environmental Committee, the Safety Committee, the Governmental Affairs Committee and the Educational Outreach Committee are our core committees. These groups are great growth and developmental opportunities for your employees where they can learn from various experts in their respective fields.

We hereby apply for membership in the Colorado Stone, Sand & Gravel Association and agree to abide by the Articles of Organization and by-laws of this Association as well as the standards and usage thereof, and such amendments thereto as may be subsequently enacted. We agree to pay all dues and/or assessments as may be legally assessed against members.
